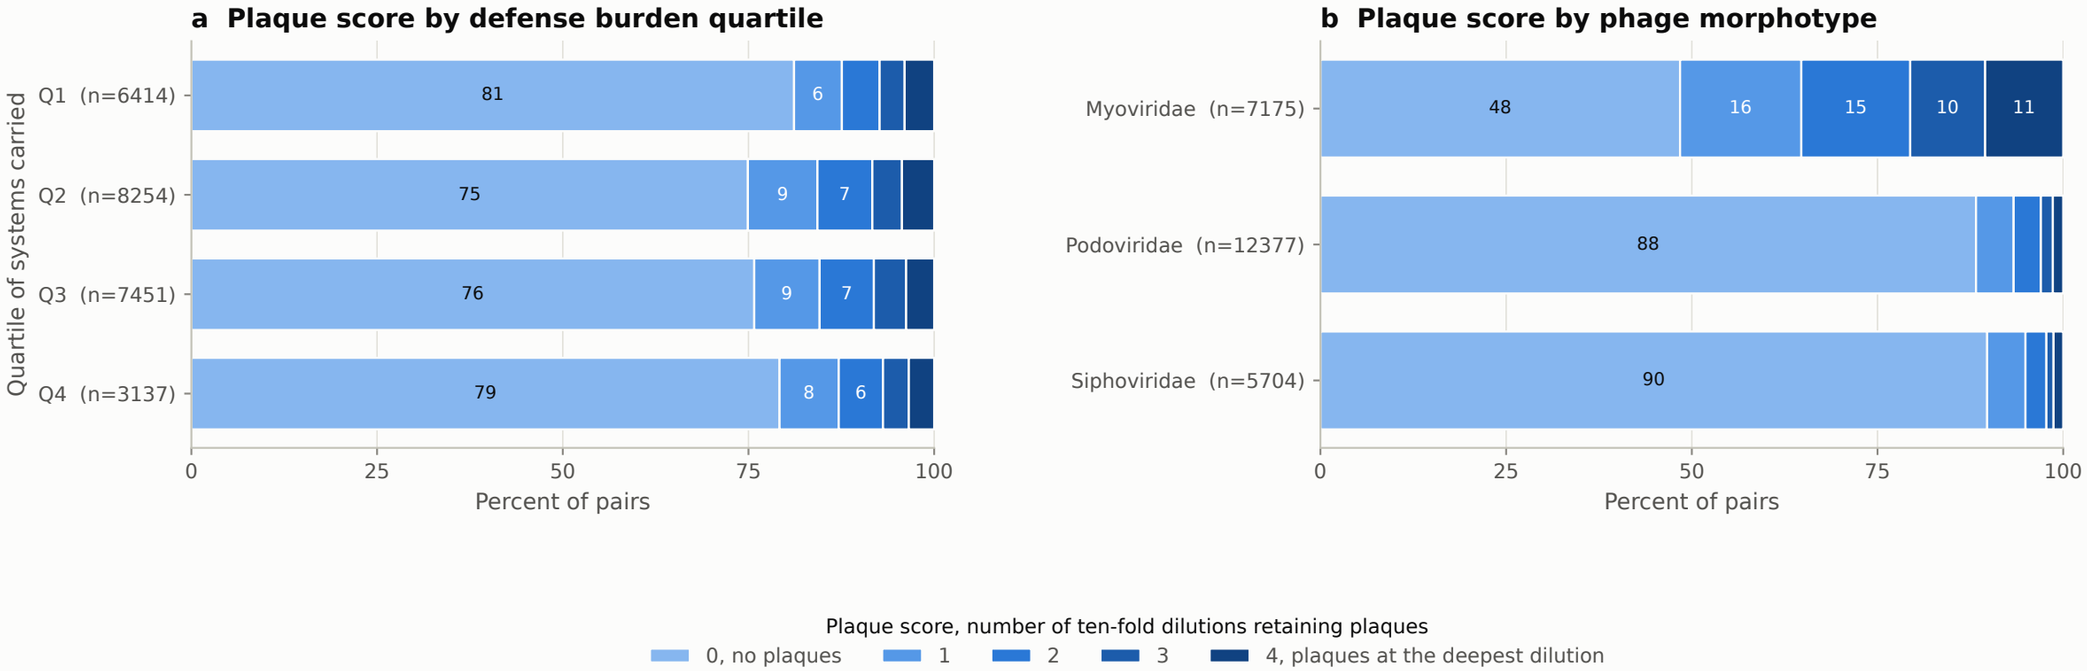
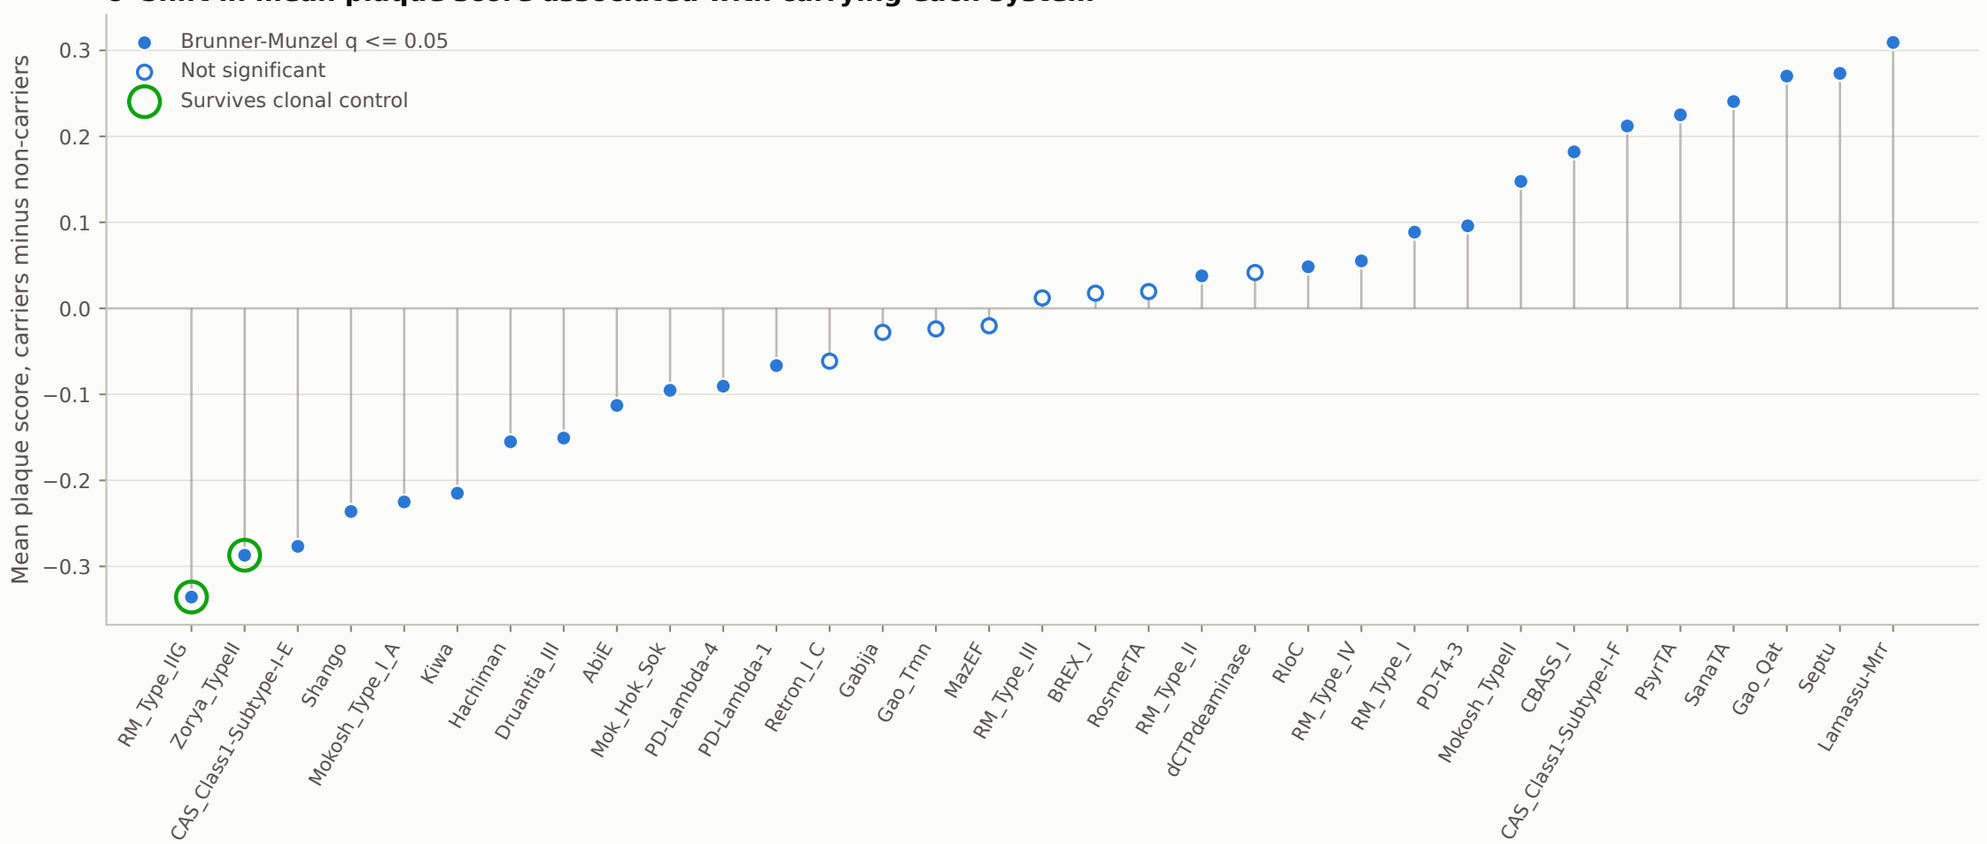
Figure 4. Plaque score tracks phage morphotype strongly and defense burden not at all




All panels are restricted to pairs passing the surface compatibility gate. The score is the number of successive ten-fold dilutions at which plaques remained visible, so it is an ordered five-level scale and not a continuous titre.
Panel c shows a difference in means for interpretability and marks significance from the rank-based Brunner-Munzel test, which does not assume a shape. Only the two systems ringed in green hold up once clonal background is controlled.
